Currently Dr. A.S.M. Amanullah is a Professor in the Department of Sociology at the Universityof Dhaka. Dr Aman is the founder of Public Health Department at ASA University, Bangladesh. He also helped establishing Public Health Department at Independent University Bangladesh (IUB). Dr. Aman also taught at the University of New South Wales (The UNSW), Sydney, Australiaand ShahjalalUniversity ofScienceandTechnology (SUST),Sylhet,Bangladesh during1990s.HewasStaffSociologistintheResearchandEvaluationDivision(RED)of BRAC, Dhaka, Bangladesh.

With his diverse experience in research and consultancy in the development sector, Dr.Amanullah has worked not only as an academic researcher but also was involved in various research projects funded by different national and international organizations and universities. So far, Dr. Amanullah worked in more than 170 development research projects as Principal Investigator (PI)/Co-PI/Consultant. Dr. Amanullah was the founder Advisor and ProgramDirector of Master of Public Health (MPH) department at ASA University, Bangladesh. Besides, heisavisitingprofessor/adviserattheNorthSouthUniversity(NSU)andIndependent University of Bangladesh (IUB). He has been leading a joint collaborative research project on "Breast Cancer Awareness among Bangladeshi Women" initiated and funded by IRC-Australia, Sydney University,and the University of Dhaka. Professor Amanullah haspublished more than90 scholarly articles, books,chapters,conference papers,and research reportsat homeand abroad. Recently two of his scholarly articles have been published in the International Quarterlyof Community Health Education, published by Community Health Education, School of Public Health and Health Sciences, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA, USA. Besides, he has published many original articles and research reports in scholarly journals and a dozen of his new publications are forthcoming.

Toformulatearegionalframework/policyfortherespectivegovernments,ProfessorAmanullah,as an international team leader, has just completed a Regional Study on "Health Vulnerabilities of Inbound and Outbound Migrants in Nepal, Bangladesh and Pakistan." Professor Amanullah hasthedemonstratedtechnicalknow-howofwritinggovernmenttogovernmenttechnicalproposalsand in attractingand implementingmulti-million-dollarprojectsinvarious development sectors.

Professor Amanullah did his BSS Hons. and Masters in Sociology from the University of Dhaka and obtained Ph.D. in Social Sciences (Medical Sociology) from the University of New South Wales,Sydney,Australia.BeinganIPRSscholar,ProfessorAmanullah'sPhDthesiswas marked as one of the path-breaking research works in controlling Emerging and Reemerging Diseases/Infections by the mainstream Australian and International scholars and public health researchers. It is widely believed that because of his epistemological understanding and active participation inlegalpolicy formulation,research, andcommunity/media mobilizationsince 1994, though sitting in the hotspot of Asian AIDS pandemic, Bangladesh has averted HIV epidemic successfully. Under his theoretical guidance and academic leadership, Bangladesh governmenthasincorporatedaseparatechapteronHIVandAIDSintothenationalcurriculum of secondary and higher secondary education, technical education, religious education, and non/informal education sectors. Dr Amanullah played a key instrumental role in designing and adopting District AIDS Committee by thegovernment of Bangladesh.He has travelled63 districts (out of 64) of Bangladesh and trained more than 30,000 teachers, Core and Master trainers, as well as district level managers on the techniques of pertaining HIV curriculum in the class-room situation and sensitizing these sensitive health discourses throughout the general audiences and other stakeholders of the society.

With his long experience in teaching and research, Dr. Amanullah continues to provide insight,and add new dimension to the subjects against human rights, international legal framework, community legal services, gender perspectives, health, and education policy. His outstanding epistemological base in the discipline is unrivalled and his continued striving for attaining yet excellence is commendable.

OtherNotes:

Dr Aman has substantial experience of more than thirty years working in social protection, urban health,disability, nutrition, development, migration, GBV, SRHR, child labor, health, environment,andpopulationareasasafull-timefacultymemberandnationallevelexpertboth athomeandabroad.Currently heisteachingMassCommunication,HIV/AIDS,Demography and Population Analysis at the University of Dhaka. Dr Aman is a visiting fellow at the North South University (NSU) and Independent University of Bangladesh (IUB). He is also heading a joint collaborative project (as a team leader) on "Breast Cancer Awareness among Bangladeshi Women" initiated by Sydney University and the University of Dhaka since 2007.

Dr Aman obtained his Bachelor of Social Sciences (BSS) (First Class First) and Master of Social Sciences(FirstClass)(MSS)degreesinSociologyfromtheUniversityofDhaka,Bangladesh. He has completed his full-time Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) at the School of Sociology in the University of New South Wales (UNSW), Sydney, Australia on 25 October 2002. Dr Aman is an experienced researcher with about three decade's demonstrated expertise in various fields of PopulationStudies,MedicalSociology,HIV/AIDS,STDs/STIsandothercommunicable diseases. In addition, he has higher-level current knowledge on Population Studies, HIV/AIDS, other contagious diseases and qualitative and quantitative research methodologies.

He has fluency in English language, computer literacy, and analytical, training, negotiation, communication and advocacy skills, specially working with youth and adolescents, Female Sex Workers(FSWs)andtheirclientsandotherhigh-riskgroups,suchasInjecting DrugUsers, Truck Drivers, and Professional Blood Donors with community-based management and media interventions. He has long expertise in developing curriculum/BCC/educational/media resources and organizing national and international workshops/seminars in both home and abroad.

Dr Aman worked as a Project Director at the University of New South Wales (UNSW), Sydney, Australia during March 1998 to December 2003. He initiated and supervised an applied research project on HIV/AIDS transmission and associated risk factors among the Bangladeshi Sex WorkersandtheirClientelesinDhaka,MymensingandNarayanganjcitieswhereinheassisted to identify research, education and support strategies for the risk practicing population tominimize the transmission of the HIV viruses.

Dr Aman's pioneering PhD research is the first in its kind that aims to explore a new paradigm in controlling the explosive outbreak of HIV/AIDS in South, SoutheastAsia, Pacific, andmany other developing countries. His study addressed some population and public health issues in developing countries and this work has already made a highly significant contribution to the academic understanding of the multifarious cultural influences on health practices and animportant assistance to the planning of public health programs in many countries.

His path-breaking research has brought considerable honor to Bangladesh and himself. The Australian and International scholars have already marked his PhD thesis as a fundamental contribution to the traditional understandings of public health research and intervention.According to eminent Australian scholars, Dr Aman has made a true significant contribution to sociological/anthropological understanding of the force of cultural and economic conditions in shaping apparently non-rational forms of human behavior.

According to Dr. A Kellehear (Director, Palliative Care Unit, La Trobe University, Melbourne), "This (Dr. Amanullah's study) is a pioneering study of the cultural reasons for the failure of conventionalrational-choicehealthpromotiontechniquesforthepreventionofHIV/AIDSin

Bangladesh. …The findings of this study are undoubtedly generalizable to other poor nations, particularly in Asia and Africa, and will form the practical social basis for future policy changesto any public health response to 3rd World AIDS". He further noted that, "My hope is that his findings will make their way into UNAIDS and WHO literature so that education campaigns can begin for the health workers attached to these organizations and NGOs. I believe Amanullah's work is the definitive, critical, scholarly work that puts paid to KAP/B research in the HIV/AIDS area. The practical and policy implications are important and groundbreaking, and he is to be congratulated for the enormous amount and quality of his fieldwork. It is truly first-rate work."
